4. China Knowledge Bowl 中国常识竞答

China Knowledge Bowl is a team competition conducted in English that tests knowledge of all things related to Chinese-speaking countries and the Chinese culture. Participants do not need to know how to read or speak Chinese.

Who is eligible?

China Knowledge Bowl is open to Grades 6-12 students in Washington State. Students may participate in the following divisions:

- Middle School (Grades 6-8) 初中组
- High School (Grades 9-12) 高中组

Competition Structure

The China Knowledge Bowl competition consists of two parts: one written round and three oral rounds. The eight top scoring teams in the written round will participate in the oral rounds. Each oral round will consist of two teams competing against each other, with the winning team advancing to the next round. The team that wins the third oral round (final round) will win first place. Second place will be awarded to the runner-up in this final round. Third place will be awarded to one of the two teams that also competed in the second round based on the team scores in the written round.

Team Composition

Each team will consist of four to six middle or high school students. All team members may participate in the written exam round, but only four members can participate in each of the oral rounds. Each team may choose a different grouping of four students for each of the oral rounds.

Judging

Each room where an oral round is conducted will have one Reader/Judge, and one Scorer/Timer. The Reader/Judge reads the question and announces the correctness of the answer based on the answer key. The Scorer/Timer times and keeps scores on a white board. Electronic buzzing devices will be used to determine which team gets to answer each question.

Scoring

In the oral rounds a team must press the buzzer in order to have the opportunity to answer a question. The team may interrupt by buzzing in at any point while the question is being read.

The Reader/Judge stops reading when a buzzer is pressed. The team that buzzes in first must answer the question immediately. All team members must take turns answering the questions; one cannot repeat a turn to answer questions until all other team members have had a turn answering questions (correctly or incorrectly). If a team's answer is incorrect, the other team has a chance to answer the question if they so desire. Each team receives one point for a correct answer and no point deduction for incorrect answers. The team with the highest score in each oral round will proceed to the next round.

Contents

All questions used in the China Knowledge Bowl are related to China and Chinese communities in one form or another. Questions will cover, but not be limited to the following topics.

- Chinese History or Culture
- Science
- Art
- Literature
- Current Affairs

All questions will be in multiple-choice format. For a study guide, please see the China Knowledge Bowl Study Guide at <http://culturalexploration.org>

Written Round Details

The written round consists of 20 to 30 questions, most of which are all taken from the Knowledge Bowl Study Guide. Test time is limited to 20 minutes. It will be conducted in the early morning on competition day. Each team member takes her/his test individually. Team members may not work cooperatively to answer questions. One point is awarded for each correct answer. No deduction is made for incorrect answers. Calculators or any other reference materials are not allowed.

At the end of this round, the China Knowledge Bowl Planning Team will collect all the tests and score them. The average score for each team will be calculated, and the eight top scoring teams will advance to the first oral round.

Oral Round Details

Each oral round will consist of 20 to 30 questions administered with a time limit of 30 minutes. Not all oral questions will come from the study guide. During the earlier rounds, competition will take place in different rooms using the same set of questions. The questions will be read aloud by the Reader/Judge for that room.

Oral Round Procedure

1. Each team selects four members to compete in a round.
2. At the beginning of each round, each team will be positioned standing with a table and four chairs.

3. A buzzer with a designated color for each team will be placed on each table. Only the standing members of the team are eligible to press their designated buzzer to answer the question.
4. As soon as the Reader/Judge starts reading the questions, the teams can buzz in at any point to answer the questions. After the answer is given (correctly or incorrectly), the member of the team who responds to the question will be asked to be seated and will not be allowed to answer or help with the team until every member of the team has had his/her turn. Once all members of the team have been seated, the entire team can once again stand in front of the table to do the rotation again.
5. The team member who buzzes in first must begin his/her response immediately. Failure to do so will yield the right to answer to the other team. If neither team buzzes in within 5 seconds, the question is tossed out and neither team earns a point.
6. Discussion among team members is not permitted at any time.
7. At the end of each round, the Reader/Judge from each room will bring the official score sheet to the main scoring area.

Awards

Awards will be given to the top three teams finishing in the oral rounds of each division.
